Course Development:

Every one of my courses has a BlackBoard element, and offers online and often multimedia elements to support my in-class lectures.

- Journalism — CMMN A250 — I implemented video journalism techniques, theories and methods including the use of natural sound; writing to video; writing and editing story packages; and writing VOs and VSOTs into a previously print-centric class.
- Elements of AP Style – CMMN A294 – I built from scratch an online-only AP style course to cater to all sequences and all levels of Mass Comm majors. This course uses online testing and on-demand video lectures, hosted on Vimeo and narrated by me.
- Beginning Reporting – CMMN A250 – I redesigned the entry-level journalism class to include a campus beat system that emulates how small community newsrooms cover beats and to include teaching that focuses on multimedia journalism techniques.
- Advanced Reporting — CMMN A350 – In conjunction with Dr. Sonya Duhe, we redesigned the Advanced Reporting class to include video and serve as a capstone reporting class for the journalism sequence

- News Editing — I restructured this class to more closely resemble actual newsroom experience, giving a special emphasis to on-deadline headline writing and story editing.
